He saw the appointee at the awards ceremony and afterwards at a party sponsored by the HUGHES Aircraft Corporation, at a suite rented by HUGHES for that purpose, in the New York Sheraton Centre. [redacted] was at the party until approximately 1:00 A.M. At the time of his [redacted] departure, there were only approximately fifteen people still there, one of whom was TOWER.

[redacted] saw nothing during the course of the evening to indicate that TOWER was intoxicated, either at the awards ceremony, or later at the HUGHES Aircraft Corporation party. Additionally, [redacted] observed nothing that could be construed as sexual or unprofessional misconduct on the part of the appointee.

He has seen the appointee in social settings at least a dozen other times and TOWER was always conducting himself in a professional manner and did not appear to be intoxicated or vying for the attention of women.

[redacted] did not know when TOWER left the party but could remember that [redacted] was still at the party along with approximately thirteen or fourteen other people. [redacted] may be married now and she worked on the [redacted] at that time, and to [redacted] knowledge, still does.

The following information was provided by a person hereinafter referred to as "he", who requested that his identity remain confidential and not be disclosed outside the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). For convenience, the source, may be referred to as WMFT-13 when appropriate. No inference regarding the sex of the source may be made from this usage.

WMFT-13 was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and that he was being interviewed regarding a background clearance investigation regarding JOHN GOODWIN TOWER. WMFT-13 voluntarily provided the following information.

WMFT-13 advised that he is a member of the [redacted] b7D
[redacted] WMFT-13 stated that he has attended office and social functions when TOWER has also attended. WMFT-13 advised that he attended one office function which was held at [redacted] in approximately 1984 while he attended three to four office functions at TOWER's [redacted] over the years. At all of these occasions, WMFT-13 was aware that TOWER drank alcohol, usually hard liquor. WMFT-13 added TOWER "didn't nurse a drink" but he could not recall the exact quantity which TOWER drank at any of these occasions. He stated he knew that TOWER "drank quite a bit" because it was highly noticeable. WMFT-13 stated he never saw TOWER "obviously inebriated or stumbling down during office hours or when a bill was on the floor". He added "he was always in control." WMFT-13 went on to state that it was his impression that it didn't mean he didn't drink before going on the Senate floor since he could consume a lot of liquor and hide it well. He could not further comment on his opinion and had no direct knowledge of TOWER drinking during working hours.

The one occasion WMFT-13 attended a Committee function [redacted] was in approximately 1984 at [redacted] [redacted] WMFT-13 advised that this function was a Committee Retreat where briefings occurred from approximately six (6:00 a.m) in the morning to approximately six (6:00 p.m.) in the evenings. WMFT-13 noted there was a bar on the premises which opened at approximately 4:00 p.m. each day. He had formed an opinion that TOWER drank quite a bit during [redacted] He added that it was always after the work of the day and he seemed relaxed. During the times he was drinking at [redacted] WMFT-13 advised "it seemed he did not function as well". He added he "seemed to be disoriented". WMFT-13 explained it appeared that TOWER "was not focusing" when conversing with staff members and was "not aware of his surroundings". He described him as "tipsy". WMFT-13 advised that during [redacted] he frequently [redacted] because events were happening at the bar that he did not want to be involved in. WMFT-13 advised he felt uncomfortable due to the heavy amount of drinking by staff members, including TOWER along with actions by [redacted]. He believed some sexual indiscretions may have occurred between [redacted] but he had no personal knowledge of any indiscretions committed by TOWER while on [redacted]. When the Committee returned from [redacted] WMFT-13 heard through office gossip that a [redacted] spent the night with TOWER. This [redacted] was [redacted]. When [redacted] was asked the reason for her [redacted] WMFT-13 remembered [redacted] got quite defensive. WMFT-13 explained that [redacted] blamed her absenteeism that night on the amount of alcohol she consumed. [redacted] told WMFT-13 that she accompanied TOWER into his bedroom area but she got [redacted]. [redacted] told WMFT-13 that she spent the night in [redacted]. WMFT-13 stated he did not see [redacted] and TOWER together at [redacted] and reiterated that this was only hearsay information that occurred after the supposed event.

WMFT-13 stated that he remembered one time in TOWER's Capitol Hill Office in the early 1980's when TOWER had his hand under a woman's dress. WMFT-13 added his hand was well above the woman's knee. WMFT-13 stated the woman was talking with TOWER and seemed not to notice this event. WMFT-13 stated the woman's name was [redacted]. At that point, WMFT-13 stated he looked away from TOWER and [redacted] and did not see what happened after the initial viewing. WMFT-13 went on to state that [redacted] was [redacted].

[redacted] With the [redacted] WMFT-13 stated that [redacted] came back intoxicated from them. WMFT-13 further added that [redacted] and TOWER worked together in Geneva, Switzerland and that she was known to have a [redacted].

WMFT-13 advised that TOWER frequently was deceptive toward his former second wife, LILLA TOWER. WMFT-13 advised that LILLA would frequently call TOWER's office and it was known by all to be totally quiet when she called. TOWER would talk with LILLA and discuss why he would be late that evening, usually lying. Then, he would hang up the telephone and joke about his conversation with LILLA. WMFT-13 advised he did not like being part of this type of deception and he felt that he was making a mockery of his marriage to LILLA.

WMFT-13 could provide no further information regarding any alcohol abuse or sexual indiscretions concerning TOWER.

identity of the interviewing agent orally and by show of credentials. [redacted] was advised of the purpose of the interview, specifically, to determine her knowledge of the presentation of an award to the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER by the USAFA. [redacted] voluntarily provided the following information:

The appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER, received the MAXWELL A. KRIENDLER Memorial Award from the USAFA at the Nineteenth National Air Force Salute on March 13, 1982. This award is presented annually in recognition of outstanding contributions by individuals and organizations to the advancement of aerospace power, the enhancement of the image of the United States Air Force and the reinforcement of our National Security. The award was presented by the Iron Gate Chapter, USAFA.

The event was held at the New York Sheraton Centre, 7th Avenue and 52nd Street, New York, New York. The USAFA provided the appointee with accommodations at the New York Sheraton Centre and [redacted] recalled that the appointee was very ungracious and that he complained that his room wasn't large enough.

[redacted] was in attendance at the Nineteenth National Air Force Salute and saw TOWER but she observed no misconduct by the appointee in his dealings with women or excess consumption of alcohol. She did however, hear rumors the following day that TOWER attended a party sponsored by the HUGHES Aircraft Company in the Presidential Suite of the New York Sheraton Centre after the award presentation to TOWER. TOWER apparently drank so much alcohol at the HUGHES party that he had to be physically assisted back to his room. [redacted] could not recall specifically who she heard this rumor from.

She provided a seating chart with the names of the HUGHES Aircraft Corporation people that were in attendance at the award ceremony to the investigating agent and the current addresses of the people sitting at the Head table with the appointee that night.

What did the swallows learn in Geneva?

A party atmosphere and potential security risks prompted a CIA inquiry

During John Tower's tenure in Geneva as a senior American arms negotiator in 1985 and 1986, federal officials were sufficiently worried that his social activities, and those of other delegates, presented major risks to the security of the United States that they launched a full-scale investigation, according to sources familiar with the government inquiry. So concerned were the officials about possible security breaches within the arms-control delegation that they enlisted the aid of the Central Intelligence Agency. The biggest worry was that some women who dated members of the U.S. delegation were operatives for hostile intelligence services, but no hard evidence has ever surfaced linking any of them to Tower.

The findings of the Geneva investigation, though inconclusive, are now being reviewed by the Senate Armed Services Committee. It has delayed a confirmation vote on Tower, President Bush's Defense Secretary-designate, for at least another week. The committee is awaiting the results of an FBI investigation into financial matters involving a Tower aide, and committee Chairman Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) has said he is concerned about whether Tower may have a drinking problem. Nunn has cautioned that rumors and allegations about Tower's time in Geneva have not been corroborated and that there is no known evidence that Tower was involved in any security breaches. Allegations about some delegates' loose social life in Geneva, which prompted the security investigation, had been known. It had not previously been disclosed, however, that the conduct of some U.S. officials in Geneva had created such concern as to warrant an investigation by the CIA. Bush has said he continues to support Tower, and spokesmen say that Tower did nothing in Geneva to justify concerns that he was a security risk.

Spy heaven. There are indications, however, that security was a serious problem for the U.S. delegation. Geneva is regarded as one of the most active intelligence-gathering areas in the world. And using female agents, known as "swallows," to entrap officials is a familiar, and often successful, Soviet espionage technique. "The investigators were able to determine that there were KGB swallows working the [U.S.] delegation," says an American official familiar with the inquiry, adding that some of the delegates made little effort to avoid them.

According to government records obtained by U.S. News, security officials were concerned about "upgraded infiltration efforts by the Soviets" in Geneva. Sources say investigators became suspicious of KGB penetration after learning that some delegates' female companions frequently traveled to Soviet-bloc countries. The officials investigated and established that some of the women were indeed intelligence agents.

The records of the investigation, which was conducted by officials of the CIA, the Defense Department and the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and headed by an ACDA secu-

"well-known" beer bash at the Pickwick, an English-style pub two blocks from the delegation's headquarters, "where certain delegation members and support personnel got smashed with the Marines." Some of the party activities "were so disgusting," the employee is quoted as saying, that "certain people drank from a delegation member's shoe and several delegation personnel became very sick from drinking too much." The employee added that "as a whole, there was too much alcohol in [an] official capacity."

Soviet bar tabs. The security investigation discovered evidence of other potential problems, including sloppy handling of top-secret documents by delegation personnel, but the chief concerns seem rity officer named Berne Indahl, show that "the social atmosphere in Geneva was very lax." Contacted at his current posting, in the Ivory Coast, Indahl refused to discuss the inquiry.

The records, many of which are based on uncorroborated statements of U.S. employees, detail "14 extramarital relationships" within the U.S. delegation, some with foreign-national females. Investigators also discovered that delegation members frequently visited the Pickwick Pub and Jimmy's Bar, "both known KGB hangouts," according to the documents. One employee, whose identity is not disclosed in the records, described a to have centered on risks posed by delegates' social activities. Investigators were told of a number of incidents of Soviets "hitting hard" on U.S. delegation secretaries at Jimmy's, a basement nightclub in the lake-front Noga Hilton Hotel. And while visiting the Pickwick, the investigators were approached by a Soviet "who bought 10 beers for them" when an agent mentioned that he was connected with the U.S. delegation. Although these approaches were often clumsy and obvious, the investigative records conclude, "they were a constant." ■

[REDACTED] ADVISED THAT AS FAR AS HE KNEW, SENATOR TOWER HAD NEVER VISITED THE COMPANY AND HAD NEVER ASKED THE COMPANY FOR CONTRIBUTIONS IN RETURN FOR HIS EFFORTS TO KEEP FORT WOLTERS OPEN. [REDACTED] STATED THAT THE COMPANY HAD NEVER SOLICITED TOWER CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS FROM ITS EMPLOYEES AND THEREFORE HAS NOT DEDUCTED CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS FROM EMPLOYEE PAYROLL CHECKS.

[REDACTED] OFFERED AN EXPLANATION AS TO WHY SOME EMPLOYEES HAD A REDUCTION IN PAY RIGHT AT THE LAST. HE EXPLAINED THAT ON THE LAST CONTRACT ON WHICH THEY WERE SUCCESSFUL BIDDERS, THE COMPETITION WAS SO HEATED THAT THEY HAD TO BID BELOW THEIR ACTUAL COST IN ORDER TO GET THE CONTRACT. IN ORDER TO PERFORM ON THE CONTRACT IT WAS NECESSARY TO CUT COSTS AND THE ONLY WAY AVAILABLE WAS TO CUT PAYROLL. [redacted] Corpus Christi, Texas, after being advised of the official identity of the interviewing Agent and the purpose of the interview, provide the following information:

[redacted] advised she has known Senator JOHN TOWER for many years, and during that time, she has been with him when he has consumed what she feels is a large quantity of alcohol. [redacted] advised that even on these occasions, Senator TOWER was able to carry on a lucid conversation and also able to make clear judgments. The last time she saw Senator TOWER drinking was during the fall of 1988 when she, [redacted] and Senator TOWER met at the LA MAISON, an establishment in Dallas, Texas, and had drinks and dinner. Senator TOWER had many drinks and occasionally slurped his words. [redacted] stated that although the conversation was light in nature, she remembers someone asking JOHN TOWER a political question, and he gave a very intelligent response as though he had not been drinking. [redacted] advised she could not remember any other specific times when she was with Senator TOWER when he was drinking, although there were other occasions. [redacted] also stated she has heard rumors of Senator TOWER's alleged womanizing but has no firsthand knowledge regarding that activity.

[redacted] advised that [redacted] a Corpus Christi, Texas resident, is an associate of Senator TOWER and may have firsthand knowledge of Senator TOWER's personal habits.

[redacted] advised she felt that if Senator TOWER were to be Secretary of Defense, he could possibly make a mistake in judgment if he was drinking, but this could occur with anyone, and she has no prior experience with Senator TOWER to base this opinion on. [redacted] advised that she has been with Senator TOWER when he talked about politics, but he has never divulged any classified information. [redacted] advised that Senator TOWER is a very loyal man.

[redacted] Mineral Wells, Texas, was contacted at the Park Inn, Brownsville, Texas, at which time he furnished the following:

[redacted] advised that he was formerly in a [redacted] [redacted] with Southern Airways in Mineral Wells and that they did close down as a result of the closing of Fort Wolters. [redacted] was [redacted] and then at the end was [redacted] stated that in his position he would have known about a solicitation of campaign funds on the part of Senator JOHN TOWER and would have known if the company was officially seeking campaign contributions from the employees.

[redacted] advised that as far as he knew Senator TOWER had never visited the company and had never asked the company for contributions in return for his efforts to keep Fort Wolters open. [redacted] stated that the company had never solicited TOWER campaign contributions and therefore had not deducted campaign contributions from employee payroll checks.

[redacted] offered an explanation as to why some employees had a reduction in pay right at the last. He explained that on the last contract on which they were the successful bidder, the competition was so heated that they had to bid below their actual cost in order to get the contract. In order to perform on the contract it was necessary to cut costs and the only way available was to cut payroll. They called in all pilots and announced that in order to keep the company operating their salaries would have to be cut by $100.00 per month.

[redacted] advised that he was not aware of any employee or supervisor that had been soliciting TOWER campaign contributions but if they were they were doing so on their own and that they were not doing so at the instruction of management.

[redacted] advised that she had [redacted] to the WHITE HOUSE and to [redacted] regarding the behavior of JOHN TOWER when he visited Memphis, Tennessee in the early 1960's and 1970's.

[redacted] advised, at the outset of the interview, that she did not have first hand knowledge of either allegation. Regarding the first allegation which allegedly occurred between 1961 and 1963, while [redacted] as an active member of the Young Republican Club, she advised that TOWER had been in Memphis, Tennessee to address the area Young Republicans, and following the speech, demanded that the club provide him with two prostitutes for a "menage a trois". This revelation came to light shortly after the speech when some of the male members of the Young Republican Club were discussing the incident. [redacted] confirmed that he was the [redacted] [redacted] at SOUTHERN AIRWAYS, Mineral Wells, Texas, at the time the flight training facility was closed in 1973, having been employed at SOUTHERN AIRWAYS from 1956 through 1973.

[redacted] recalled that near the end of the Vietnam War, there were persistent rumors to the effect that the SOUTHERN AIRWAYS facility, at Mineral Wells, was going to be closed, and that the entire operation would be transferred to FORT RUCKER, Alabama, therefore, eliminating the jobs of all the Mineral Wells employees. He also recalled that there was strong sentiment regarding the fact that JOHN TOWER was, perhaps, SOUTHERN AIRWAYS only salvation in that if re-elected, he could intercede on SOUTHERN AIRWAYS behalf, and retain the facility at Mineral Wells.

[redacted] advised that [redacted] was the [redacted] [redacted] of SOUTHERN AIRWAYS, and was his immediate superior. He stated that at the height of operations, SOUTHERN AIRWAYS employed a total of 3,800 civilians, and had a compliment of 2,000 military students, graduating 500 pilots per month.

[redacted] stated that he has always been an ardent supporter of the Republican Party, and recalled that he probably donated approximately $25.00 to the TOWER campaign himself. He adamantly denied ever soliciting contributions on TOWER's behalf, and further denied the existence of any SOUTHERN AIRWAYS corporate initiative on TOWER's behalf. He stated that a $200.00 contribution in 1973 dollars, would have represented a substantial sum, far beyond his own financial means, and beyond those of his flight instructors subordinates. He denied the existence of any memorandum regarding employee contributions, and any financial agreement with the FIRST NATIONAL BANK, in Mineral Wells.

AIRLINES for [redacted] years. [redacted] further advised that he flies in the position of Captain on domestic flights and in the position of Co-pilot (1st Officer) on international flights. [redacted] stated that an in-flight log book which he personally owns and maintains reflected that he was the Co-pilot (1st Officer) on AMERICAN AIRLINES flight number 79, from Gatwick Airport, London, to Dallas-Fort Worth, Texas Airport on September 3, 1987. His in-flight log book also reflected that [redacted] was Captain of the flight and [redacted] was the Flight Engineer. [redacted] did not know nor did he have a record of who the flight attendants or any of the passengers were.

[redacted] recalled that at some point during AMERICAN AIRLINES flight number 99, he had been told by one of the flight attendants that Senator JOHN TOWER was a passenger on the flight. [redacted] Approximately 4-6 hours into the log 10 hour flight, [redacted] decided to walk through the airplane to the galley to stretch his legs. As he walked through the First Class Section of the aircraft, he believed he observed an individual who looked like Senator JOHN TOWER, sleeping in a seat on the right hand side of the airplane.
The cabin was dark because all the plastic slides which cover the windows had been closed so that passengers could sleep or watch movies if they do desire. [redacted] recalled that he did not see any alcoholic beverage or even any glasses on the table in front of Senator JOHN TOWER. [redacted] had no idea which flight attendants served the Senator and did not remember even seeing another individual sitting next to TOWER.

[redacted] stated that this brief observation of an individual resembling TOWER during the flight was the only time he possibly saw the Senator and he did not see or hear anything regarding TOWER during the remainder of the flight.

[redacted] advised he had no idea whether or not TOWER was drinking alcoholic beverages during the flight nor did he have any information regarding TOWER's behavior during the trip.

BARRY GOLDWATER, retired senator, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C., telephonically contacted reporting agent and was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the purpose of the interview. Specifically, GOLDWATER was interviewed concerning his possible knowledge of the altering of contents in a Congressional bill by JOHN GOODWIN TOWER. The congressional bill in question dealt with the procurement of 120 MM mortars for the U.S. Army.

GOLDWATER advised that he had no knowledge of JOHN TOWER being involved in the altering of the document in question, but added that "I'm not saying he didn't." GOLDWATER stated that it had been so long since the incident in question. GOLDWATER added that previous administrative assistants of his might be able to remember specifics of the incident.

GOLDWATER advised that the mortar deal was "all screwed up" and that he does not know to this day if the mortars were ever procured for the Army.

GOLDWATER again advised that he did not know if JOHN TOWER had altered the document in question, but added that he "wouldn't put my hand on the Bible."

COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES

WASHINGTON, DC 20510-6050

February 17, 1989

b6
b7C

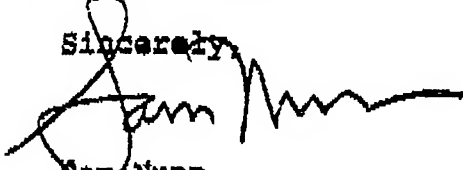

[REDACTED]
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear [REDACTED]

On February 6, 1989, I wrote to you concerning problems the Committee had encountered in obtaining files on [REDACTED] particularly a file maintained by the Office of Personnel Management. At that time, I asked that the FBI determine who at OPM was responsible for the initial failure to provide the file in January in response to our request and whether there was tampering with the file. It is also important that the FBI determine why the attached document from the OPM file, entitled "Memorandum to Office of Special Investigations, USAF" was not provided to the Committee in response to its initial request, and was apparently not provided to the FBI until a request was initiated by this Committee in February.

We were advised today by the Air Force that this material was not in the OSI file, and that the Air Force personnel connected with the [REDACTED] inquiry had never seen it before. This leaves open questions as to the origin of the document, the reasons it was not included in the OSI file, and the circumstances under which it was obtained and considered by OPM. These are questions that are likely to be asked as we proceed with consideration of this nomination. This is in response to your letter of February 15, 1989, asking that we provide you with the names and addresses of any individuals who have furnished the White House with pertinent derogatory information regarding the nomination of Senator John G. Tower.

We have asked the members of the senior staff to determine whether they have received any such information. To date, no one has reported the receipt of any derogatory information regarding Tower's nomination that has not previously been provided to the FBI. We have also enclosed copies of three letters (with enclosures) that we have received today from the Senate Armed Services Committee. These letters reference allegations that may be relevant to your request.

We appreciate your efforts to ensure that a thorough and complete background investigation of Senator Tower has been completed. Please contact us if we can be of further assistance.

Sincerely,

The following investigation was conducted by Special Agents (SAs) [redacted] and [redacted] at the [redacted] in Refugio, Texas on February 17, 1989: b6 b7C

LAWRENCE WOOD advised he has known JOHN TOWER in excess of twenty years, having met him when JOHN TOWER first ran for the United States Senate. WOOD advised he does not feel JOHN TOWER has an alcohol problem. WOOD stated JOHN TOWER overcame whatever alcohol problem he had in 1980 when his second wife, LILA, made him promise to give up "spirits" (as LILA TOWER called it). JOHN TOWER did, and switched to wine. WOOD stated he has only seen JOHN TOWER drink wine since that time.

WOOD advised he last saw JOHN TOWER drink about four to five months ago prior to the general election. They were at the LA MANSION in Dallas, Texas, and JOHN TOWER had one drink of white wine at that time. Afterward, JOHN TOWER drove the Mr. and Mrs. WOOD back to their hotel and was never intoxicated during the evening.

WOOD advised that he was also with JOHN TOWER at the Paris air show and also in Washington and Geneva when JOHN TOWER was drinking, but it was only wine, and JOHN TOWER was never intoxicated. WOOD stated that [redacted] had told him that in Geneva during the Arms negotiations, JOHN TOWER never drank on duty. Also, he never divulged any classified information, and on the contrary, was very guarded about the aspect of his work.

WOOD advised that JOHN TOWER's ability to make correct judgments would not be affected by his current drinking habits. By "current", WOOD meant "since 1980".

WOOD advised that he knows of no "womanizing" by JOHN TOWER and has only known him to be with his first two wives [redacted]. WOOD advised he has no hearsay information to report regarding this.

WOOD advised that he was Chairman of the Board of MERCANTILE BANK in San Antonio, Texas a number of years ago (under the name of [redacted]). When JOHN TOWER approached him to make a loan for JOHN TOWER, WOOD advised he told this person to contact the Loan Department and proceed through normal channels as everyone else did. WOOD did this specifically to avoid any appearance of illegality. The loan was made at the going rate, and he only reviewed it after it was made. WOOD advised it was paid off early.

AS/ing

WOOD advised he has not been a financial advisor to JOHN TOWER, but has donated the legal amount to his campaigns.

WOOD knows of no occasion when JOHN TOWER was hospitalized to "dry out", and this was the first time he has heard of this allegation. WOOD advised he has never paid JOHN TOWER's bill for this type of treatment.

Also, [redacted] was asked to comment on information regarding the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency's (ACDA) investigation of JOHN TOWER. [redacted] provided the following information.

[redacted] advised that he was aware of the one pub known as the Pickwick Pub, located in Geneva, Switzerland. [redacted] advised that he was apprised of the possibilities of the pub being a KGB "hangout" by [redacted] assigned to the United States Mission in Geneva. [redacted] advised that he was provided the information regarding the Pickwick Pub by the Agent, in the presence of JOHN TOWER. [redacted] advised that [redacted] requested that [redacted]

[redacted] to pass along to the Delegation employees that the Pickwick Pub should be considered "off limits". [redacted] advised that he recalled JOHN TOWER agreeing to such a directive by [redacted] and [redacted] advised that TOWER seemed to be familiar with the Pickwick Pub by name. [redacted] advised however, that he had no knowledge as to whether TOWER ever frequented the Pickwick Pub. In addition, [redacted] advised that he was unfamiliar with the other pub mentioned in the magazine article, Jimmy's Bar.

Upon handing the lists to the investigating agent, [REDACTED] advised the lists were complete as to the members of the Armed Services Committee at that time. However, he further stated that several telephone numbers were unknown for these individuals and those members that were listed were the last known telephone numbers and no addresses were available.

Initially, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia telephone directories were used to find the individuals whose telephone numbers were unknown. Furthermore, telephone operators were contacted in the two states and the District in search of the individuals. The Haines Criss-Cross Directory was further utilized in the possibility of locating the listed individuals. Attempts were made to contact and identify the listed individuals by way of telephone calls, messages and direct contact with their possible residence. From all efforts, the following individuals in addition to those interviewed at the Senate Armed Services Committee noted above, were contacted and the results of the interviews were submitted to FBIHQ, Spin Unit.

He attended the Nineteenth National Air Force Salute on March 13, 1982, in New York City, New York, where TOWER was presented the MAXWELL A. KRIENDLER Memorial Award by the Iron Gate Chapter of the United States Air Force Association (USAF) at the New York Sheraton Centre.

He observed the appointee during the award ceremony and afterwards in a suite rented by the HUGHES Aircraft Company where condiments and beverages were available to anyone that attended the Nineteenth National Air Force Salute. Although he did see the appointee have one or two drinks in the HUGHES suite after the award ceremony, [redacted] did not see anything regarding TOWER's conduct that caused him any concern whatsoever. He saw no signs of alcohol abuse nor any sexual misconduct by TOWER.

[redacted] left the HUGHES suite at approximately 1:00 A.M. and remembered that TOWER was still present. He reiterated that during the entire course of the evening and at other social functions he has attended where the appointee was present, the appointee conducted himself in a very gentlemanly and professional manner.

The following information was provided by a person hereinafter referred to as WF T-1 or "he" who requested that his identity remain confidential and not be disclosed outside the FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (FBI). For convenience, the source may be referred to as "he" where appropriate; no inference regarding the sex of the source may be made from this usage.

He was asked by the interviewing agent whether he had placed a call to a member of Congress or a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, or someone at the White House asking them if they had been made privy to the information that he had provided to the FBI, during the investigation, of JOHN GOODWIN TOWER. He immediately asked the investigating agent why he was being contacted, regarding a phone call. He was then told that FBI Headquarters had received a call from someone at the White House, stating that WF T-1 had called a Senator and asked them if they had received the information, that he had provided, to the FBI.

He responded that it was "absurd". He never made that call, "and anyway it is none of our business who he calls and why." He went on to advise that he was "damn angry that his name had been dragged through the mud by the White House." WF T-1 stated that he "does not trust the people in the White House." He further stated that he did not believe a call was made from a Senator, and demanded the source of the phone call. He was advised that the source could not be made public to him.

WF T-1 went on to state that JOHN TOWER, Secretary of Defense-Designate, was bringing his former wife to the inauguration. He was doing this specifically to "show BUSH and everyone else that he was a family man."

WF T-1 then went on to say that the agent's call to him and the call to the White House and FBIHQ was "shocking and very irregular." Once again he demanded the source of the phone call, and once again it was denied. He then advised that he would sue the interviewing agent, his boss, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, if his name was made public. He advised that "he is tired of getting the short end of the stick."

Once again the interviewing agent advised that the call was made to determine whether he had indeed contacted a Senator, or anybody in the Senate Armed Services Committee, under the premise of wanting to make them privy to the information that he had previously provided to the FBI, absent his identity. He was told that the only way this information, including his identity, could be made privy to the Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman and the Chief Minority Leader, would be if he specifically gave the Federal Bureau of Investigation permission to release his statements, with his name on it.

WF T-1 again stated he never made that call and would "call anyone he damn well pleased." Again he requested the identity of the Senator or the staff member who made the call. Again the request was denied and he was told he would have to go through normal Freedom of Information Act channels.

WF T-1 then advised that he was made aware that JOHN TOWER recently checked into a hotel in Dallas, under an assumed name to have some surgery done. He wanted to know what name he used, and if it was the same name that he told us he was using when he was abroad.

WF T-1 was advised that we were aware of the fact that TOWER had checked into a hotel, under an assumed name, and we were "looking into the matter." WF T-1 then advised that we (the FBI) are "dealing with a man with a barren mind, whose judgment is impaired on a permanent basis. This is because of his alcohol consumption."

WF T-1 again stated that he never made a call and would talk to anyone he pleased. Once again he "officially requested the source" of the phone call. Once again it was declined.

WF T-1 then stated that the interviewing agent took for granted that the call from the White House, if there was such a call, came in good faith. He stated that "you, (the interviewing agent) are being used by the White House or FBIHQ or the Senate to get the information."

Again he "officially" requested the source of the information and was declined. WF T-1 was then told once again that he would have to go through the official channels of the Freedom of Information Act, to get the source. He then stated that he should not have to go through "the goddamn channels to get that information", after he cooperated with us. At that point I gave him the phone number of [redacted] the Supervisor of the SPIN Squad, at the Washington Field Office.

After he was given that information, he stated that he "had enough," and then he began asking the interviewing agent questions. He wanted to know how many people we talked to, how many people we contacted, and how many other people requested confidentiality. The interviewing agent refused to comment on any of these questions, and at that time, terminated the interview.

WF T-18 went on to characterize the appointee as "a slime ball, a cretin and cheap." She stated that everyone knows about his character, and that even the Senators know about him. She and a friend were at a party recently and everyone was telling "TOWER stories." Everyone was laughing and joking about the situation. A friend of her's, whose identity she would not reveal, told a story about TOWER playing "grab ass" with a woman in the Senate elevator.

When asked as to whether he believed the appointee to be also financially stable, he responded that it is his understanding that the appointee's net worth upon leaving the Senate was about $60,000, plus his Senate retirement, going on to mention that he believes the appointee to live within his financial means.

He has never known the appointee to abuse alcohol or prescription drugs. He commented that he has traveled extensively with the appointee, to Europe as well as around this country, and not once has he ever seen the appointee drunk, known him to drink to excess, or to slur his speech. He characterized white wine as the appointee's "drink of choice", mentioning that the appointee would have one or two glasses with a meal. He has never known the appointee to use or sell drugs of abuse.

He is unaware of any foreign contacts of the appointee which would be considered unusual in any kind of a national security sense, characterizing all of the appointee's contacts, to his knowledge, with the Soviet Delegation at START to be professional in nature.

He knows of no radical or adverse political association on the appointee's part and believes the appointee would have no problem continuing to deal effectively with sensitive information. He has never known the appointee to manifest any evidence of prejudice or bias.

When asked as to whether he was aware of any derogatory information concerning the appointee, he responded in the negative.

When asked to comment on allegations of womanizing on the appointee's part, he responded that the appointee is the "son of a methodist minister, (and is) from the old school," going on to mention that the appointee is always "very courteous, (and) complimentary to women". Regarding allegations of womanizing by the appointee in Geneva, he advised "that just did not happen," going on to relate that he had personally spent the better part of 16 hours per day, weekdays as well as weekends, with the appointee during the START negotiations, mentioning of the appointee "he was always on top of what he was supposed to be doing." He advised that during the fourth round of the negotiations, at his own expense, the appointee brought [REDACTED] over successively, to serve as his "social companion" or "affiliate," in that Mrs. LILLA CUMMINGS TOWER had not accompanied her husband during that round. He speculated that as one or both of [REDACTED] accompanied the appointee to several social gatherings and receptions, to those who might not have known the appointee's [REDACTED] the observation that he was out with young women might naturally occur. He noted that he learned during the fourth round of negotiations that the appointee was separated from Mrs TOWER, but stipulated that the appointee "wasn't dating or womanizing," rather characterizing him as "celibate".

When asked as to whether he was aware of any instances of sexual harassment during the START negotiations, he related that the only instance of this kind which comes to mind was the matter involving [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. It was his understanding that the two had had a good working relationship, that being the basis for [REDACTED] invitation for [REDACTED] to attend the START negotiations. [REDACTED] He surmises that "something he [REDACTED] did made her angry (as) she went after him with everything she could think of." When asked to characterize [REDACTED] he responded "she could be a little flirtatious; but I didn't sense anything physical or extra-marital was going on." When asked as to whether, to his knowledge, the appointee had any knowledge of the [REDACTED] matter, he responded "until it broke loose, I don't think that he knew," going on to mention that [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] He does not know whether [REDACTED] spoke to the appointee about this matter, stipulating that [REDACTED] certainly did not come through him to approach the Senator about this matter. He has no knowledge of any contact between [REDACTED] or [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] or [REDACTED] also of the START Delegation. He was quick to point out that neither [REDACTED] nor [REDACTED] were associated with the START Delegation, but were rather under [REDACTED] and the Space and Defense Delegation.

When asked as to whether he was aware of any security violations during the Geneva Accords, he responded in the negative, other than to comment that his understanding was that [REDACTED] subsequent to the EEO complaint, had problems in this area, none of which he has first hand knowledge of.

He has no knowledge of any dating by the appointee of foreign nationals.

When asked as to whether he was aware of any procurement of sex partners for the Soviets by TOWER, he responded in the negative.

When asked as to whether he was aware of any unusual relationship between the appointee and either or both of [redacted] [redacted] during the Geneva Accords, he responded that the appointee's [redacted] were [redacted] and [redacted] mentioning they were like [redacted] to the appointee and that there was certainly no sexual relationship between the appointee and either of these two young women to his knowledge. He does not recall the appointee ever having escorted either of these two women to any social activities, although mentioning that as automobiles were at a premium in Geneva, many times various of the appointee's staff were transported with the appointee during the Accords. He iterated that the appointee brought over [redacted] [redacted] at his own expense, the [redacted] for a period of three to four weeks, and the [redacted] for a period of about three weeks, the two sharing a one or two week over lap, to serve as his female companion(s) to various receptions, Congressional as well as with the Soviets. He has never known either of the appointee's [redacted] to drink to excess and knows of no derogatory information regarding their stay with the appointee at [redacted] apartment in the Old Cathedral area of Geneva. He advised that the appointee and [redacted] moved to [redacted] apartment after his estranged second wife, LILLA CUMMINGS TOWER, arrived unexpectedly in Geneva, moving into the appointee's official residence.

When asked as to whether he had any recollection of a flood in the basement of either of the appointee's residences in Geneva, he responded that the only flood that he has any knowledge of was in the basement of the appointee's Washington, D.C., home on Kalorama Circle, in the summer of 1985. He noted that he was the appointee's Military Assistant at the time and had helped the appointee, his wife, and a male friend of the appointee's wife, in an effort to save memorabilia damaged by the flood, which was the result of leaves clogging the home's drainage system.

He has no knowledge of any illegal campaign contributions or spending by the appointee of the moneys raised for his Senatorial Campaign nor of any ties between the appointee and the banking industry. He noted that it was _____

_____ and that he _____ never came close to the spending all of these allocations, thus the appointee's spending could not have been excessive in this area.

He has no knowledge of any potential conflicts of interest the appointee may have with any member of the defense contracting industry.

He mentioned that there had been "wild poker parties" allegations in the media regarding the leisure time activities at the Geneva Accords, mentioning that he personally remembers only two times in which there were poker games and that these were "more of a social occasion" than anything else. He noted that Geneva was a "pretty stressful environment (requiring) long hours, (in a) fish bowl environment" advising that "pressure like a steam cooker would build". He related that the poker games relieved much of that stress and that they were of the "nickel, dime, quarter" variety. He noted that the counting of the cards was a mental exercise for the appointee and that he was "very much more sober than any one else at the game." He added that visiting Congressmen, as well as their staffs, participated in these games.

He knows of no criminal activity in the appointee's past nor of any aspect of the appointee's past that would render him susceptible to the any kind of a coercive effort.

When asked as to whether he was in a position to comment upon the appointee's interaction with his own family, he characterized as "excellent" the appointee's relationship with _____ going on to mention that "his second wife is an absolute liability". He speculated that it is she who is the source of many of the derogatory allegations regarding the appointee, and commented that "I'm sure that woman would say whatever it takes to draw blood."

He recommends the appointee for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government, concluding the interview by saying "I think he'd be a great Secretary of Defense."

General Russell E. Dougherty (USAF RET), of Counsel with the law firm of McGuire, Woods, Battle and Booth, 8280 Greensboro Drive, McLean, Virginia, telephone: 703-356-2281, was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the purpose of the interview, specifically, to obtain any knowledge he had regarding the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER. DOUGHERTY voluntarily provided the following information:

On March 13, 1982, he attended the Nineteenth National Air Force Salute in New York City, New York, at the New York Sheraton Centre. At this social function, Senator JOHN TOWER was presented the MAXWELL A. KRIENDLER Memorial Award by the Iron Gate Chapter of the United States Air Force Association (USAFA). At the time of this function, DOUGHERTY was the Executive Director of the USAFA.

He saw the appointee at the function and remembered him receiving the award and stated that the appointee conducted himself in a very professional and reserved manner and was not under the influence of alcohol during the award ceremony. However, he did not attend any of the parties afterwards and had no knowledge of the appointee's conduct at these parties.

JOHN G. TOWER was advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and of the fact that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had questions to ask in connection with the background investigation being conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of TOWER.

At the outset of the interview, TOWER furnished the interviewing agents with one copy each of three letters dated May 27, 1986, May 28, 1987, and May 16, 1988. Each letter is on the stationery of British Aerospace, Incorporated. In addition, TOWER provided one copy of a letter from TOWER to the President of British Aerospace, Incorporated dated December 16, 1988. TOWER advised that these are copies of his agreement with British Aerospace, Incorporated and a copy of his resignation from any relationship he may have had with that company.

TOWER was asked to explain his relationship with a company known as Micronics, and to state any payments, stock options, or fees which he may have received from them. TOWER advised that he has made a number of public presentations for this company on the subject of computer security. He explained that Micronics is a young, Texas based company which makes a product involving the security of smaller computers. He advised that he made a speech approximately four or five times to a gathering of potential customers for this company. In each case, he spoke from a script provided by the company, and spoke about the need for computer security in general, the need for computer security which could be fulfilled by the product made by Micronics in particular, and gave examples of what can happen when a company does not have proper security on his computer. TOWER stated that he was not working for this company particularly for the money, since he took a very low payment for each speech, about $1,000 each. He noted that he asks and receives $10,000 for making a speech at a college. However, since this was a young Texas company, he agreed to take $1,000 for each speech and also received an option to purchase 5,000 shares of the company stock at $3 per share. He stated that this stock option was recently sold for a profit of $7,500 and the proceeds were placed in TOWER's account January 25, 1989. He advised that all of the above details have previously been furnished to the General Counsel of the Senate Armed Services Committee. He further noted that this company is not a direct contractor to the Department of Defense, but rather is a subcontractor, one which sells its product to a company which is a Department of Defense contractor.

In response to a direct question, TOWER stated that he did know Mr. HILLARY SANDOVAL, who died a number of years ago. He stated that he also has known [redacted] for many years also. TOWER was advised that an allegation had been made that SANDOVAL, as head of the Small Business Administration, had arranged for a loan to [redacted] in the amount of $350,000. Shortly after receiving this loan, [redacted] is said to have loaned $250,000 to TOWER's election campaign. TOWER advised that he has absolutely no knowledge of the Small Business Administration making a loan to [redacted] and does not know anything about [redacted] having made a $250,000 loan to his election campaign.

TOWER stated that it would be highly unusual for his campaign to have borrowed money from an individual. He advised that if the campaign needed money, it would borrow the money through a commercial bank against future contributions to be received by the campaign. In other instances, the loan from the bank would be underwritten by wealthy campaign contributors. But in either case, the loan would be from a bank, rather than from the individuals. Having become aware of this allegation prior to this interview, TOWER called [redacted] who formerly worked as [redacted] for TOWER's 1972 election campaign. [redacted] advised TOWER that [redacted] does not recall any loan in the amount of $250,000 from [redacted]. TOWER stated that he, TOWER, cannot provide any additional information concerning this allegation.

TOWER was advised that an allegation had been made that a group known as the Independent Oil Producers and Drillers Association, Wichita Falls, Texas made a contribution to TOWER's election campaign in the amount of $15,000 during 1972. TOWER advised that he has never heard of an organization known as the Independent Oil Producers and Drillers Associations. He speculated that the group in question is probably the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owner's, a trade organization of independent operators. He described this as a perfectly legitimate organization, one which has been in business for many years. TOWER advised that he does not specifically recall any contributions made by TIPRO. Any contributions given to the re-election campaign would have been accepted by the finance committee of that campaign. TOWER believes that it is and was the responsibility of that finance committee to judge the legality of any contributions which it accepts. TOWER stated that, over the many years he has run election campaigns, he has always stayed away from handling contributions and campaign financing, leaving that responsibility to the finance group. He explained that, in the early days, the group handling such matters would have been a finance committee within the election campaign. In recent years, however, such matters would have been handled by a private organization which has as its business the raising of campaign finances for a committee. In addition, TOWER stated that he believes that, at the time the alleged donation was said to have been made, it would have been perfectly proper for a trade association to give any amount of money to a campaign, just as a political action committee could have given any amount of money in those days. In any case whatsoever, TOWER does not recall any information concerning a contribution from either the Independent Oil Producers and Drillers Association or even the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners.

TOWER was advised that an allegation had been made concerning Southern Airways of Texas, a company which had a contract for flight training at Fort Walters, Texas during 1972. The allegation states that employees of this organization were required to have $100 or $150 deducted from their pay and that the money was donated to TOWER for his 1972 election campaign. TOWER advised that he has absolutely no information about this matter. He stated that, if such a thing happened, it may have been done by the local finance committee for his election campaign but was done without his knowledge or his permission. He referred to his previous comments concerning the fact that financing a campaign was handled by the finance committee and was not handled by TOWER himself. He stated that his only relationship to campaign financing would have been to attend and give speeches at campaign dinners and fundraisers. Had someone tried to come up to TOWER and hand him some money, he would, without any doubt, have referred that individual to a member of the campaign finance committee. He explained that these were his procedures, but repeated that he has absolutely no information concerning this allegation.

In response to a direct question, TOWER advised that he does not know anyone named [REDACTED] and does not recall meeting any such person in connection with United Technologies. However, he certainly does know VINNIE PROTHRO. TOWER has known the PROTHRO family for many years and noted that TOWER's father, a minister, was minister to PROTHRO's parents years ago. In addition, "VIN" PROTHRO has [REDACTED] who is TOWER's [REDACTED] in Wichita Falls, Texas. He advised, however, that he does not have any information concerning the collection of funds from individuals employed by United Technologies, and does not ever recall receiving any money in any amount from either [REDACTED] or PROTHRO. Since he has known the PROTHRO for so many years he would not be at all surprised if VINNIE PROTHRO or one of his immediate family members was involved in TOWER's campaign or campaign financing. In addition, TOWER noted that, for the 1983 campaign, all fundraising would have been the responsibility of a professional fundraising corporation. TOWER stated that he, himself, would not have handled any money, any dinner tickets, or any other details involving a fundraising social function or involving campaign finances. TOWER repeated that he does not have any information concerning this allegation.

In response to a direct question, TOWER advised that he did, in fact, write a letter in support of [REDACTED]. When asked for the circumstances surrounding his having written this letter, TOWER advised that questions had been raised concerning [REDACTED] in Geneva, Switzerland. TOWER stated that he does not specifically recall whether or not a request was made of TOWER to write such a letter. He speculated that [REDACTED] may have asked TOWER to write such letter. In any case, TOWER advised that he wrote this letter willingly and without any conditions being placed upon him. TOWER stated that he is fully aware of the allegation that [REDACTED] TOWER stated that [REDACTED] could not have done so primarily because there was nothing with which he could have [REDACTED]. In addition, had anyone ever tried to [REDACTED] TOWER stated that he would have gone directly to the proper authorities. TOWER never saw any indication that [REDACTED]

TOWER was asked whether he was aware of [redacted] concerning the delegation or its work. In addition, TOWER was asked whether he had ever directed [redacted] such information. TOWER responded in the negative to both questions, stating that he has no information concerning [redacted] and TOWER never made a request to [redacted] to do so. TOWER noted that [redacted] and stated that he, TOWER, would not have authority to order [redacted] to take any such action.

TOWER advised that he does not specifically recall any former employee by the name of [redacted]. Whether or not he ever had such an employee during the mid to late 70's, TOWER stated that he absolutely never had any sexual relationship with anyone named [redacted]. He never [redacted] including anyone named [redacted]. TOWER later called the interviewing agent and advised that he had checked with his [redacted] and his [redacted]. Each [redacted] advised that she did not recall any former employee of TOWER's [redacted] named [redacted].

When asked whether he ever kept any mistresses while he was employed in Geneva, Switzerland, TOWER stated that he definitely never did keep any mistresses. He is well aware of allegations that he kept [redacted] as mistresses and had a sexual relationship with one or both of them. He stated that these allegations are absolutely false. In response to a direct question, TOWER stated that he could not think of any actions on his part which might honestly have been misinterpreted by others to indicate that he was having a relationship with either or both of [redacted]. In addition, he never paid for their room or lodging. The only instance he recalls having visited the room of either of [redacted] was once at the end of the particular round of talks. TOWER and [redacted] visited the hotel room where [redacted] lived for a social gathering.

TOWER was asked to describe the circumstances surrounding the hiring of one of [redacted] and to describe her duties while in Geneva, Switzerland. TOWER advised that [redacted] was hired as a [redacted] during [redacted] while TOWER was still a member of the United States Senate. She was hired by TOWER's [redacted]. He advised that the appointee was hired as a [redacted] but [redacted].

[redacted] At the request and suggestion of another individual, TOWER kept [redacted] on the payroll after TOWER left the United States Senate because he found her to be very well organized and highly efficient in handling the office responsibilities. In Geneva, [redacted] performed a wide range of functions including that of "sort of a gofer". The [redacted] in Geneva, [redacted] was used primarily as the [redacted]

In fact, TOWER placed [redacted] in complete charge of each of the moves which TOWER has made over the years, from the Senate to private life, from private life to Geneva, Switzerland from Geneva, back to Washington, D.C. and most recently from private life to Secretary of Defense. TOWER advised that [redacted] responsibilities within the office, and that one activity should not be used to judge her effectiveness or benefit to the office.

TOWER was advised that an allegation has been made that he utilized a suite in the officer's club at the Naval base, Corpus Christi, Texas, for illicit purposes. TOWER advised that he does not ever recall having been in the officer's club at the Naval base, Corpus Christi, Texas. If he was ever within this club at all, it would have been in connection with his official duties as the Senator from the state of Texas and would have been a reception, meeting, or some other official function. However, he does not recall ever having done so. He did recall having been in the Non-Commissioned Officer's Club on that Naval base, since he took initiation into the Naval Reserves at that club. In any case, he has never utilized any rooms or suites at either club for illicit or illegal purposes.

In response to a direct question, TOWER stated that he certainly does know LAWRENCE WOODS, of Corpus Christi, Texas. TOWER was advised that an allegation has been made that WOODS paid for a one month stay by TOWER in a detoxification center, a stay which is said to have taken place approximately 1980. TOWER advised that he has never been in any detoxification facility of any kind at any time. In addition, he has never taken any lengthy stay or vacation which was paid for him by [redacted]. He did advise, however, that he has visited [redacted] home with the second Mrs. TOWER on one occasion and recalls having stayed there alone once also. In both cases, his stay at the house would have been one or two nights.

TOWER was advised that an allegation has been made concerning his consumption of alcohol on the flight number 79 from Gatwick Airport, London, England to Dallas, Texas on September 3, 1987. TOWER stated that he "never consumed an inordinate amount of alcohol on any flight." He advised that details of his various flights have already been provided by [redacted] to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. From memory, however, TOWER stated that he recalls having flown from Karachi, Pakistan to London during late August, 1987. He flew from London to Zurich, Switzerland, from Zurich back to London, and finally from London to Dallas, Texas. He believes that he was accompanied both from Zurich to London and from London to Dallas (on the particular flight in question) by his former [redacted]. He cannot be absolutely certain of this fact, but he believes it is true. TOWER advised that he does not ever drink any more than a glass or two of wine with a meal on an airplane. On a flight such as the flight from London to Dallas, he usually has a little lunch, and then goes to sleep. When asked whether or not he ever drinks vodka on air flights in general, and whether he had any vodka on that flight in particular, TOWER stated that the only time he ever drinks vodka is when it is served with caviar. When it is served with caviar, it is served in a very small glass. Concerning his use of champagne, TOWER stated that he does not drink more than one or two glasses, since more than that upsets his stomach. He advised that he does not specifically recall drinking vodka or champagne on that flight in question. In response to a direct question, TOWER stated that he does not recall having had a female traveling companion on that particular trip, or having met a female traveling companion during that trip. TOWER explained that he usually flies American Airlines whenever he can, and because of this fact, the airline leaves the seat next to him empty whenever they can.

TOWER was advised that an allegation has been made that he consumed too large a quantity of alcohol and was slurring his words while having a dinner during the Fall of 1988 with [redacted]

WMFO 161A-19411

Continuation of FD-302 of JOHN G. TOWER, On 2/18/89, Page 8

[redacted] He was asked whether or not he recalled such a dinner and whether he recalled how much alcohol he consumed. TOWER immediately made a telephone call after which he advised that he did, in fact, have lunch at the Yacht Club in Corpus Christi, Texas with [redacted] and [redacted]

b7c

[redacted] TOWER advised that he, himself, had one and one half glasses of wine and one glass of iced tea during that meal. He advised that he does not recall the specific quantity of wine consumed by the group as a whole. He is certain that he did not consume any more wine than stated above, because both he and [redacted]

[redacted] were scheduled to catch a plane back to Dallas, Texas that afternoon. He advised that they did fly back to Dallas that afternoon, and he is certain he did not consume any excess amount of alcohol during that meal. He speculated that the group of four people having lunch probably did not consume more than one bottle of wine.

TOWER was asked whether or not he ever drank alcohol to excess during either the election campaign or the Republican National Convention, 1988. TOWER stated that he does not believe he drank alcohol to excess during these times. He explained that, when he has work to do, he never drinks at all. He explained that these were very busy and difficult times and he does not believe that he ever consumed alcohol to excess. He believes that this fact can be verified through interview of people who were active in the campaign and convention, including [redacted] and [redacted]

TOWER was asked whether or not he was familiar with an allegation that a particular Defense Contractor had made payments to a Defense Consultant in order to influence TOWER. In addition, TOWER was asked whether he has ever received payments from a Defense Consultant for information or services. TOWER advised that he is very familiar with the Defense Consultant in question, and has already been asked during a prior interview by the Federal Bureau of Investigation about the Defense Contractor. TOWER advised that he does not ever recall meeting this Defense Contractor. TOWER advised that he has never, ever promised to do anything in exchange for a campaign contribution or other financial gain. Specifically, he never did receive any payment from the Defense Consultant in this particular allegation. Doing so would be completely against TOWER's sense of ethics. TOWER advised that, based upon his personal knowledge of this Defense Consultant, he doubts very much whether the Consultant ever accepted money from the Contractor, but in any case TOWER never did receive any money from this Consultant for any purpose whatsoever.

TOWER was advised that an allegation has been made that he was ejected from his house in Geneva, Switzerland by Mrs. TOWER because he was keeping a mistress. TOWER advised there is absolutely no truth to the accusation that he was thrown out of his house, and there is no truth to the accusation that he kept a mistress in Geneva, Switzerland. TOWER advised that, to understand what happened in Geneva during February, 1986, it is necessary to have some background concerning the relationship with he and Mrs. TOWER. He stated that when he returned from Geneva at the end of the third round of talks, approximately November 9 or 10, 1985, he decided that he needed to separate permanently from Mrs. TOWER. He explained that he found her to be verbally abusive and humiliating to TOWER. As a result, he left his residence with Mrs. TOWER here in Washington on November 11, 1985. Although they subsequently made efforts to reconcile, it was later accepted by both parties that the November 11, 1985 date was the effective date of their having separated. TOWER returned to Geneva, Switzerland during January, 1986 to begin the fourth round of talks. This round was due to end during late February, 1986 and he agreed with Mrs. TOWER that she could return to Geneva at the end of the fourth round in order to help divide and pack the family furniture which was maintained at Geneva. He advised, however, that Mrs. TOWER arrived completely unannounced and unwelcomed on February 6, 1986 and took up residence in the home where TOWER and [redacted] had been residing, a place they referred to "the villa". Later that day, TOWER returned to this home, packed his personal belongings and he and [redacted] left that residence that very afternoon. For about two days, TOWER stayed in a hotel and [redacted] stayed with TOWER's [redacted]. Meanwhile, TOWER's [redacted] arrived in Geneva to stay with [redacted]. On February 13, 1986, TOWER and [redacted] took up residence in an apartment used by one of the individuals who would not be present in Geneva for this round of talks. He stated that the above are the facts surrounding his having left the villa which was occupied by Mrs. TOWER. He never was thrown out of this house, it was his house to begin with and he left on his own accord. He denied, as stated previously, that he has ever kept or maintained a mistress in Geneva, Switzerland. Finally, he advised that none of these happenings had anything to do with his later resignation.

TOWER was asked whether or not he recalls returning home to his residence in Turtle Creek, Dallas, Texas in an inebriated condition within the last two years. TOWER responded in the negative, stating he has never returned to his residence in Turtle Creek in an inebriated condition within the last two years. TOWER was asked whether or not he recalls having returned to his residence in an inebriated condition and having found himself locked out of his apartment. He stated that he definitely recalls having returned to his home and finding himself locked out, but he denied being in an inebriated condition at the time. He explained that he was returning from a campaign trip at approximately 12:00 midnight or 1:00 a.m. in the morning. At that time, he found that he did not have his house key. He stated that he went to the area of the lounge where he waited for the building superintendent, who was said to arrive at 4:00 a.m. or 5:00 a.m. each morning. TOWER stated that he clearly recalls this incident and clearly recalls that he was not in any condition which could be interpreted as inebriated. He recalled that he had flown in a short time earlier from a campaign trip, possibly to southern Texas. He stated that he came home directly from the airport and made no stops on the way. When asked whether or not he had consumed any alcohol on this plane trip, he stated that he may have had "a couple" of glasses of wine on the plane trip. When pressed for the number of glasses of wine he had on that occasion, TOWER stated that it was probably one or two, maybe even three. When advised that the allegation in question indicated that he needed to be assisted to the area of the swimming pool in order to wait for the manager to arrive with his key, TOWER stated that the lounge mentioned above is immediately adjacent to the swimming pool. In addition, he stated that he definitely did not need any assistance in getting to the area of the lounge, and was perfectly capable of traveling to the lounge on his own. He again denied having had too much alcohol to drink on that occasion. TOWER stated that he could not attempt to guess at the date when this might have occurred, but stated that he believes it would have been during warm weather.
